REGULAR HOME MAINTENANCE

Keeping up with home maintenance tasks will keep you from future headaches and wasted money. It can be intimidating however, you can do the majority of it on your own without much experience. Creating a home maintenance calendar will help. If all these things get accomplished regularly, your home will be happy for years to come.

MONTHLY

- Inspect & change out HVAC filters,
- Clean range hood filters by simply using a degreaser from an auto parts store
- Inspect your fire extinguisher (s) and ensure it's easy to access

SPRING

Spring is a big month for home maintenance. They don't call it "Spring Cleaning" for nothing.

Especially focus on the exterior of your home as it's just gone through winter and is preparing for summer heat, and sometimes, brutal humidity.

- Check the exterior drainage to ensure rain water flows away from the house.
- Check and clean your gutters
- Inspect the exterior of your home and check the foundation for any cracks. A good silicone/caulk can fix a lot of your problems.
- Get your air conditioning system ready for summer; consider having it serviced.
- Repair/replace damaged window screens. You don't want bugs making their way in
- Clear dead plants/shrubs from the house
- Inspect roofing for damage, leaks, etc. Repair as needed; you may need a professional

GOOD FOOD BOX AND BREAKFAST FOOD BOX

The Good Food Box and Breakfast Food Box program are available at the Mental Health building currently located at 469 Kokomis Unit 3 (beside the bingo hall). Everyone is welcome to access the program free of charge.

The Good Food Box provides a meal for approximately 5 people and the Breakfast Food Box provides breakfast and snacks for children.

For any questions please call the Mental Health Team at 613-625-1551 or stop in.

FENTANYL NNADAP ‘GET THE FACTS’!

Please take the time to read and learn about fentanyl, get the facts so that you can understand why it can be so dangerous, and even deadly. Fentanyl is a very potent opioid pain reliever. It is generally used in hospital settings, and can also be prescribed by a doctor to help control severe pain. Forms of fentanyl for medical purposes can be given as skin patches, injections and tablets. Within Canada, fentanyl has entered the illegal drug market by theft of pharmaceutical fentanyl products, illegal import from other countries and by illegal laboratories. Canada’s illegal drug supply is being contaminated with illegal fentanyl. You can’t see, taste or smell fentanyl and a few grains is enough to kill you. Fentanyl is causing high rates of overdose and overdose death. Why is fentanyl so dangerous? Fentanyl is 20 to 40 times more potent than heroin and 100 times more potent than morphine, which makes the risk of accidental overdose very high. A very small amount of pure fentanyl is enough to kill the average adult. Fentanyl can be mixed with other drugs such as heroin and cocaine, as well found in counterfeit pills that are made to look like prescription opioids.

Signs of a fentanyl or opioid overdose include; severe sleepiness or loss of consciousness, slow, shallow breathing, lips and nails turn blue, person is unresponsive, gurgling sounds or snoring, cold and clammy skin and tiny pupils.

What to do if you suspect an overdose? Call 911 immediately for emergency medical assistance; Canada’s ‘Good Samaritan Drug Overdose Act’ can protect you and anyone else at the scene of an overdose from simple drug possession charges. Use Naloxone, a drug that can temporarily reverse the effects of an opioid overdose. Naloxone wears off in 20 – 90 minutes, so it is very important to seek further medical attention. Re-administer Naloxone if signs and symptoms do not disappear or reappear. STAY with person until emergency services arrive.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE RELAPSE, PREVENTION & AFTERCARE

‘The Underlying Factors of Relapse and Attaching No Shame to the Person who is Recovery’ Important information for us all to know when recovering from substance use disorders and supporting a loved one through their recovery journey.

People experience relapse for a million different reasons, perhaps you simply fell back into your old patterns, maybe you haven’t received proper treatment for co-occurring disorders such as anxiety or depression, or maybe you just weren’t ready. There is one underlying factor that is nearly always present in a relapse: Shame. Studies have demonstrated that looking optimistically towards the future can help you maintain your sobriety, while dwelling in shame of relapse can create continuous relapse. Shame can prevent a person from maintaining their hard-fought sobriety, and holding on to those negative emotions inside is toxic.

Talking about your shame and what you’re experiencing can help you overcome and establish new coping strategies to assist you on your path of recovery. If there is pain or shame attached to your relapse or recovery, this may delay your recovery process. Talking about the underlying issues can open your mind to a new narrative which can focus on redemption and hope. Please be gentle on yourselves and know that there is no shame in working towards a healed recovery outcome. Relapse happens, and remember that you are worthy of growth and change. When you are supporting a loved one with their relapse and recovery journey, please be gentle and compassionate to your loved one & be the inspiration for others. If you require any information or support to help you to begin or continue to recovery from a substance use disorder. Please contact you NNADAP Addictions Worker Alex @ 613-625-1551

SOCIAL SERVICES UPDATE

The Family Well Being three-year project has come to an end. It is hoped that this is temporary.

As Jayden and Rhonda's contracts have also come to an end they are thanked immensely for all their hard work and dedication to the various programs. They are both wished well in their future endeavours. Danielle has returned to her former position as the Administrative Assistant for Prevention Services. Welcome back Danielle.

- Hilda Tennesco has accepted a three-month contract as the Pikwakanagan Child & Family Services supervisor to help ensure program consistency and continuity.
- The Tween and Teen Facts program will continue at 101 Kiwita (Family Well Being building) on the same days Tuesday - and at the same time. Danielle will be hosting.
- Mike's program on Friday's will continue the same on Friday's at 101 Kiwita.

Thanks to the Pikwakanagan community for your continued support.
