RE: DELTA - VARIANT OF CONCERN

The COVID-19 initiatives team together with the public health team, will be developing bi-weekly communiques moving forward. Each communique will focus on a different COVID-19 topic area. The first topic of focus is the Delta variant.

The Delta variant (previously known as B.1617.2) is spreading quickly and First Nations are urged to remain vigilant. As of July 22, there have been 3,754 cases of the Delta Variant in Ontario. The Delta variant has quickly become one of the most aggressive and transmissible variants in the recent months. This highly infectious variant is currently on track to become the dominant strain of COVID-19 in Ontario.

As the province begins to reopen and people spend more time together, the chance of a fourth wave occurring increases. Continuing to follow public health measures, such as social distancing and mask wearing, even for those that are fully vaccinated, can help to prevent another wave and possible lockdown in Ontario.

One of the best ways to combat COVID-19 and prevent future outbreaks is vaccination. There is still a lower uptake of vaccines in the younger populations resulting in the lower vaccination rates. These younger populations who are unvaccinated are at greater risk. As we learned from recent outbreaks in Northern communities, the majority of cases occurred in youth under 18 years of age.

Studies have shown that Pfizer and Moderna are 90% effective in preventing hospitalizations due to the Delta Variant. Moderna has recently announced that their vaccine is particularly effective in producing the antibodies needed to fight off the Delta variant. Although there is still a possibility of those fully vaccinated contracting the virus, they are less likely to experience extreme illness, hospitalization and death.

The Southwest region of Ontario currently has the highest case rates of the Delta variant. In particular, one First Nation community within the region experienced a massive outbreak in late June - early July. There were over 100 cases reported in this small community in just a couple weeks. This outbreak was driven by the Delta variant. With many other cases outside of First Nations communities in the area as well, this part of southwestern Ontario has been declared a Delta variant hot spot. Many of those who have contracted the variant in this area were unvaccinated, and efforts are being made to increase vaccinations.

The Delta variant is now considered the dominant strain worldwide. As we learn more about the Delta variant from other countries, it is becoming clear that the majority of cases are taking place in those that are unvaccinated. As it is so contagious and can lead to severe illness, it is vital to remain careful and to protect yourself, your family and your community.

Other Variants of Concern have been confirmed in Ontario in the recent months. Along with the Delta variant, these are also mutations of the COVID-19 virus. They are also aggressive and highly transmissible. These variants were renamed after the Greek letters of the alphabet by the World Health Organization (WHO) on May 31, 2021.

ALPHA – B.1.1.7 variant, first identified in the United Kingdom in October 2020. It quickly began to spread by mid-December and was first detected in Ontario in February 2021. The Alpha variant is about 50% more transmissible than the initial virus.

BETA – B.1.351 variant, first identified in South Africa. This variant has been the least widespread of the variants in Ontario.

GAMMA – P.1 variant, first identified in Brazil in October 2020. This variant has a mutation that makes it more transmissible compared to the previous COVID-19 strain.

LAMBDA – C.37 variant, first identified in Peru. It was originally labeled a ‘Variant of Interest’* in June 2021 by the World Health Organization (WHO) and is the latest variant to be reported in Canada. Cases have been confirmed in Ontario and a few other provinces. It is too early to say how infectious this new variant is or confirm its response to vaccines.

Vaccines used in Canada have proven to be highly effective against each of the other known VOCs. A study that was conducted in Ontario and released earlier this month suggests that even a single dose of the 3 major vaccines (Pfizer, Moderna and Astra Zeneca) provides good to excellent protection against symptomatic infection and severe outcomes caused by the four variants.

*Definition: ‘Variant of Interest’ (VOI) – A variant that may share one or more mutations in common with a VOC, but do not have enough evidence at this time to be considered a VOC.

Step 3: Roadmap to Reopen

Effective July 16, 2021

Friday, July 16, 2021, Ontario will move into Step 3 of the Roadmap to Reopen. This is a three-step plan to safely and cautiously reopen the province and gradually lift public health measures. In Step 3, the following is now permitted:

- ✓ Indoor social gatherings and organized public events for up to 25 people.
- ✓ Outdoor social gatherings and organized public events of up to 100 people.

TYPE 2 DIABETES IN CHILDREN: WE CAN REDUCE THE RISK!!

The saying 'diabetes runs in families' is mostly true. Well, we can't change the genes we inherit, but the other big reason why diabetes runs in families is that we learn eating and exercising habits from our families. These habits can be changed.

People living in the same household tend to eat similar foods and are either active or inactive together. Children learn from those around them. They see what you eat and how much you exercise. Learning to eat healthfully and exercise regularly will reduce their risk of getting type 2 diabetes even if it does run in the family.

Small steps to create healthy changes for the whole family

Stop buying pop and fruit juices: Both are loaded with sugar. These types of drinks should only be drunk as an occasional treat. Water is life, water is sacred, offer it regularly. Kids will learn to drink water when they're thirsty.

Eat together: As much as possible, eat meals together with your family. There is so much benefit for the family unit when we sit together for well balanced meals at regular times.

Cook with your kids: This can start at an early age. Teach them to set the table and wash the dishes as well. This teaches them that food and meals are to be enjoyed and appreciated.

Limit screen time: This is a tough one but so beneficial. Once cellphones, computers, and TVs are turned off, it gives more time for everyone to get out for a walk, a bike ride, or just to play and learn together.
