The Importance of why we test well water:

Your well water can affect the health of everyone who consumes it. Health Services test for the indicators of bacterial contamination:

Coliforms: These bacteria are often found in animal waste, sewage, as well as soil and vegetation. If they are in your drinking water, surface water may be entering your well from a nearby source

E.Coli: If they are in your drinking water, it usually means that animal or human waste is entering your well from a nearby source

What is so important about foot care for those with diabetes?

Problems with our feet are more likely when we are living with diabetes. This is because diabetes can damage our nerves and decrease the blood flow to our extremities. When our nerves are damaged, they can no longer send signals to other parts of the body. Nerve damage can range from a sensation of mild numbness to pain that will make normal daily activities that much harder. As many as 50% of those living with diabetes will develop a form of diabetic neuropathy. Diabetic Peripheral Neuropathy is only one type of nerve damage that can affect those with diabetes and is also the most common type. This is directly related to high blood sugar levels and will usually affect the feet and legs first, followed by the hands and arms. There are symptoms that you can watch out for:

- Tingling in feet or the sensation of “pins and needles”
- Pain or cramps in your feet.
- An increase in sensitivity.
- Numbness and/or weakness in muscles
- Small cuts or sores on your feet that seem to take longer to heal

So, why does all this happen to some people living with diabetes? Of course, it's not just one cause, there are numerous factors that come into play:

- Increased (unmanaged or poorly managed) blood sugar levels for an extended amount of time
- This causes damage to the blood vessels that carry nutrients and oxygen to the nerves
- The lack of nutrients and oxygen damages the nerves which leads to them having either a dull reaction or no reaction to stimuli.
- Prolonged smoking and alcohol abuse. Both habits affect the circulatory and nervous systems.
- Being overweight and being 40 or older
- Having high blood pressure and high cholesterol

There can be complications that arise if those living with diabetes are not putting preventative measures in place: infections from small cuts on the feet can snowball pretty quickly if we aren't checking our feet out daily. 70% of non-traumatic lower limb amputations in Canada are due to diabetes complications. 85% of these amputations started off with a foot ulcer that wouldn't heal. So, what are these preventative measures? Pretty simple stuff but needs to be consistent.

- Check feet daily for cuts, redness, swelling, blisters, corns, calluses, or any other changes to the feet. If you can't see the bottoms yourself, get a mirror or a family member to help you out.
- Wash feet daily with warm water. Once washed, dry them completely and put lotion on them (just not between the toes as the moisture could lead to infection)
- Keep the footwear on (even when inside) to avoid injuries. Check shoes before putting them on each time...check for pebbles or other small objects and to see if the lining is smooth.
- Wear proper footwear, and always wear socks with the shoes.
- Trim toenails straight across and smooth out those sharp edges with a nail file. Can't reach your feet? See a foot care specialist (like a podiatrist or foot care nurse) to trim those nails for you.
- Keep the corn and callus removal/reduction for the professionals. Over the counter products to remove them can be quite harsh and can burn the skin.
- Get your feet checked every time you see your family Dr. If you have a foot specialist, make sure you have a full foot assessment each year with them which includes checking for nerve damage and blood flow to the feet.
- Keep your blood flowing. Putting feet up while sitting, wiggling toes for a few minutes' multiple times a day...this all helps with blood flow
- Feet-friendly activities. It's important for those living with diabetes to adopt a healthy lifestyle. Walking (with the right footwear), riding a bike and swimming are all low impact activities that will not strain the feet but also keep that blood pumping.
- Manage those blood sugar levels and keep them in your target range (this is such an important part – not just for the feet, for the whole body!)

If we take the proper precautions, living with diabetes does not have to be a painful experience. Footcare is part of preventative care and is easy to put into our daily routines.

For more information on diabetic footcare and diabetes in general, please contact Natalie Mooy, diabetic navigator at diabetic.navigators@pikwakanagan.ca or 613-401-3679
